3 pieces of evidence that support
greater accuracy and efficiency —
and how Ricoh can help

Document review doesn't have to drain resources

In an era marked by significantly escalating data volumes and tech advancements, traditional eDiscovery processes can quickly exceed time and budgetary restraints, as well as compromise accuracy. That's why it's crucial for corporate legal teams to engage a strategic eDiscovery partner that understands their organization's particular needs — and the intricacies of applying a smarter document review approach to effectively serve those needs.

While it's one thing to have access to the latest eDiscovery tools, it is quite another to know how to effectively use them to maximize value. For smart results, document review should merge advanced review tools with technology and eDiscovery expertise to...

Significantly increase efficiency and cut costs

Improve speed and accuracy in identifying relevant material

Customize review solutions, regardless of scope or complexity

When eDiscovery solutions go beyond a one-size-fits-all approach, it's no longer standard document review — it's smart document review.

Let's discuss three key pieces of evidence that prove the need for a smart document review solution.

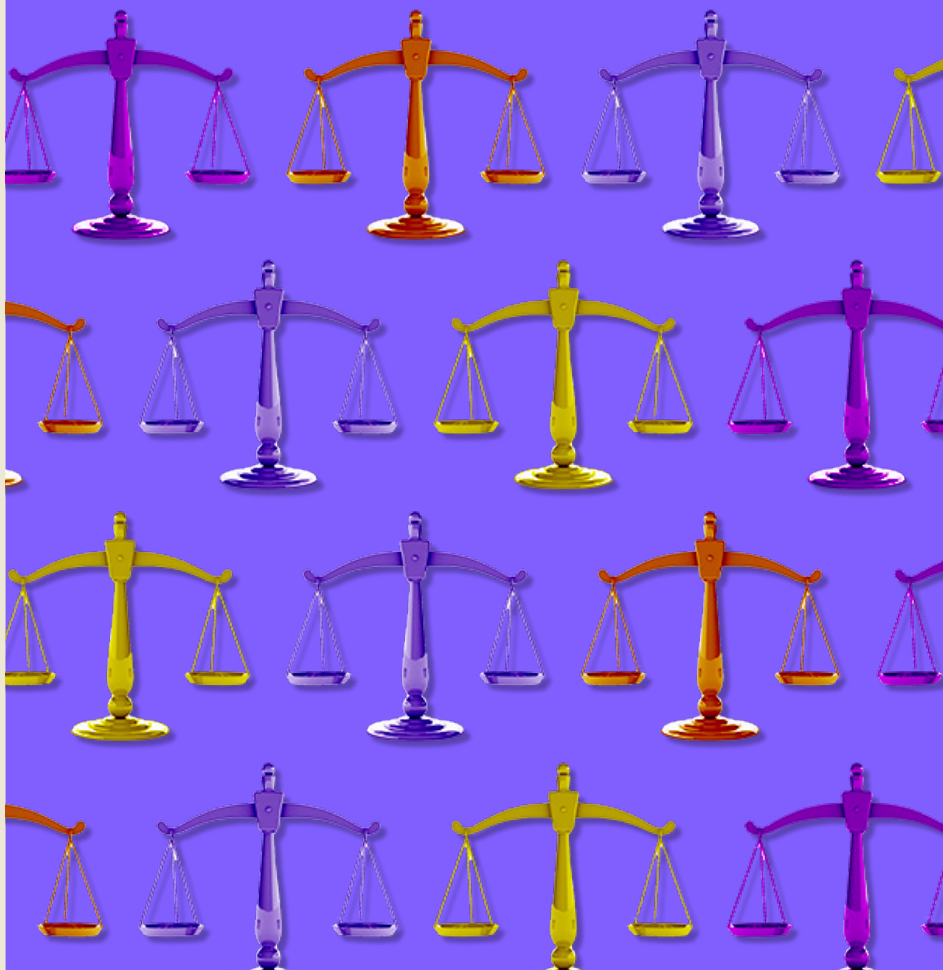

KEY EVIDENCE 1

Drives efficiency,
accuracy and speed

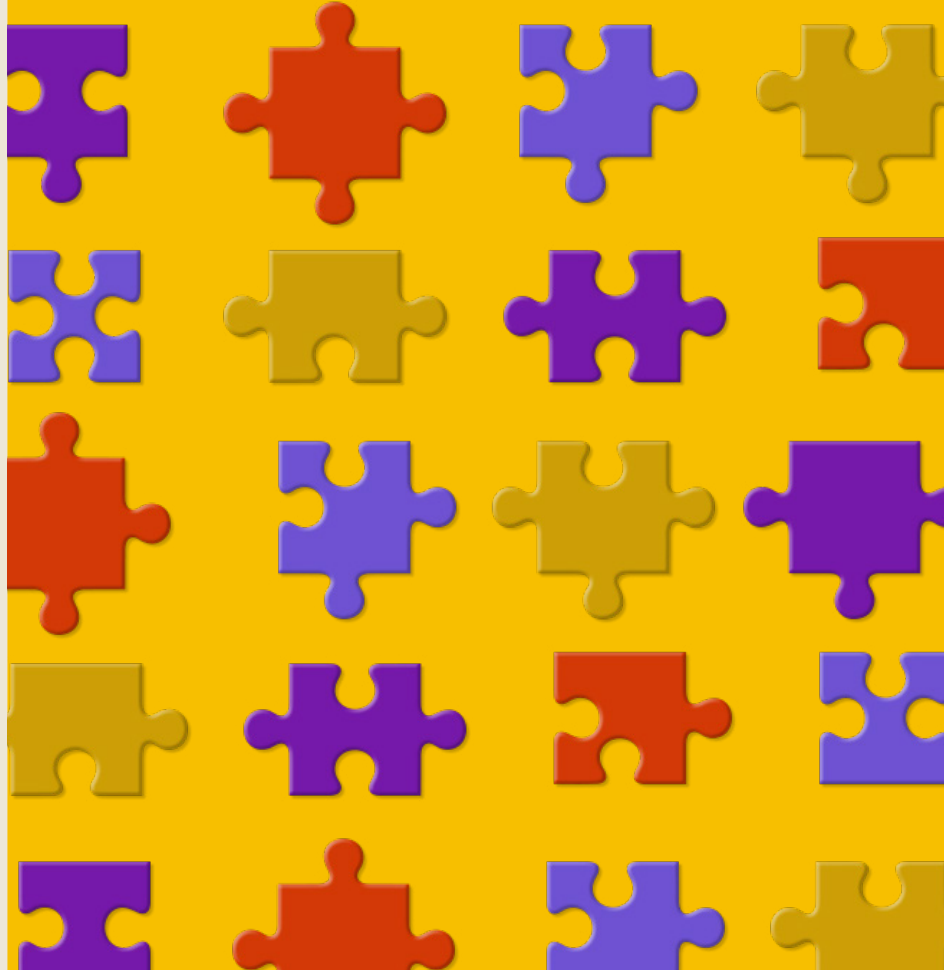

KEY EVIDENCE 2

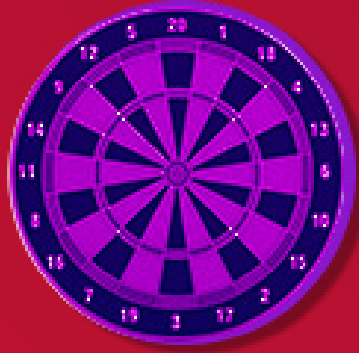

Provides experienced review
lawyers and tech experts

KEY EVIDENCE 3

Customizes solutions to meet your unique needs

KEY EVIDENCE 1

Results not only improve accuracy, but are delivered faster — for less

THE CHALLENGE

Immense volumes of digital data to collect in legal discovery can lead to prolonged, costly review requirements, often exceeding budgetary limits and deadlines. The traditional model of using high-cost legal resources for this compounds the issue, as lack of experience with efficient review workflows can quickly escalate unnecessary fees.

THE RESOLUTION

A smart document review process identifies, analyzes, culls and organizes large data sets with the same — or greater — accuracy you expect, but in a fraction of the time. By combining the use of advanced analytics with a team of highly experienced eDiscovery lawyers and technologists, the smart approach to document review ensures thorough and defensible results quickly, ultimately saving you time and money.

KEY EVIDENCE 2

Experienced review lawyers and tech experts ensure accuracy and efficiency

THE CHALLENGE

eDiscovery can be an incredible challenge in both scope and budget. This is especially true considering the ever-increasing volume of organizational data, making it imperative to leverage innovative technologies and skilled professionals to ensure efficient, accurate and cost-effective document review processes.

THE RESOLUTION

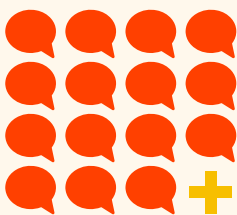

A smart document review solution provides a team of highly experienced eDiscovery lawyers and technology experts dedicated to driving review efficiencies. Let your high-cost legal team focus on legal strategy — and employ a smart review solution that will get key documents to them sooner.

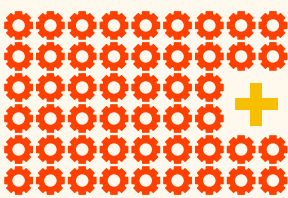

SUPPORTING EVIDENCE

Supporting clients nationally, our collaborative Intelligent Review team consists of highly specialized eDiscovery review lawyers and technology experts who:

Can conduct reviews in over 15 different languages

Are approaching or have completed 50+ projects each

Have experience in 20 different areas of law

KEY EVIDENCE 3

Custom solutions are built with proven expertise

THE CHALLENGE

Bringing in an experienced and dedicated external team for document review and eDiscovery can help scale resources, reduce burden and minimize the high-cost billable hours incurred by your external law firm. Without expert, customizable solutions built to meet unique case needs, these teams may prove less effective and more costly.

THE RESOLUTION

Most document review approaches employ the same “tried and true” workflow — placing you at a disadvantage for the unique needs of your matter. A smart document review solution should merge deep data analysis with significant expertise in the application and manipulation of advanced review tools. This custom approach delivers optimal results aligned with your matter’s specific requirements.
