

RICOH Analytics for Print

Is your organization optimizing its print environment by using data effectively?

The challenges:

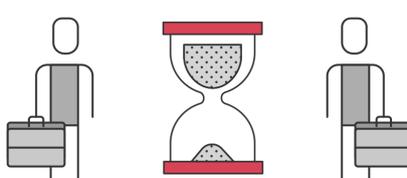

Complex organizations often have complex printing environments

Multiple departments and multiple users with multiple needs make it hard to optimize the print environment, especially when there's no expert dedicated to owning that task

Printing systems can produce lots of data, but many managers aren't sure how to use it to improve efficiencies and right-size the processes creating the output.

Executives have limited time to make important decisions about the print environment and associated processes— and quick decision-making is required in competitive and crowded markets
